

87 87 D - JEFFERSON

(Come Thou, Long-Expected Jesus - LSB 338)

1. Water turned to blood in vengeance,
sea-life killed and crops defiled.
Judged by God is Egypt sentenced
with the gory river Nile.
Woe to those who dip unworthy
and the covenant betray!
May we drink, for we are thirsty,
knowing in His hands we lay.

2. Changed in substance for the wedding,
Cana's water turned to wine.
Rations for the banquet setting
multiplied for all to dine.
With the loaves that He is breaking,
He the wedding feast provides.
From our cup, the love cascading
of the bridegroom for His bride.

3. Blood and water, intermingled,
from the body gushing forth.
Sacrificial blood is sprinkled
off'ring new life to the earth.
Silenced is the tender bleating
of the Lamb's humility.
On that body we are feeding
which He gives so willingly.

4. Giving thanks, He said the blessing,
raising up the chalice high.
"Take and drink," to us addressing,
changed the substance of the wine,
pardoning our frail transgressions,
lifting us to life restored.
Unified in congregation,
drink the blood of Christ outpoured!
